IMAF – 2008 Spring Japan Tour

Tokyo, Japan

Spring Tour participants arrived on March 17th with great hopes of discovering traditional and modern Japan, and studying with world-renowned Kokusai Budoin, IMAF instructors.

Their dreams came true during the following twelve busy days that were filled with intensive studies, and unique cultural events.

A day trip Odawara castle, a national historic site (built in 1495), was one of the many cultural activities tour members enjoyed.

Spring Tour activities included sightseeing at significant cultural centers in and around the greater Tokyo area, studying with prestigious leaders of traditional martial arts at a variety of locations (Ikushinkan Aikido Dojo is featured in the photos below), and sharing these experiences with like-minded brothers and sisters in budo. Among the many highlights of the 2008 IMAF Japan Tour, members trained at the Ikushinkan Dojo, Gima-ha, Shotokan-ryu Hombu Dojo, US Embassy Judo Club (established in 1957), Hiyoshi Dojo, and Seiseikan Dojo.

Friday, March 28th the annual Farewell Banquet was held for all Spring Tour members, and IMAF HQ instructors. Certificates of Achievement were presented to all Tour participants, as everyone had demonstrated dedication and tireless efforts throughout his and her training.

Sincere appreciation is due to Mr. and Mrs. Hans-D. Rauscher, and IMAF members both in Japan and Europe, for their dedication that helped ensure the successful conclusion of the 2008 Spring Japan Tour.

Everyone is invited to attend the 2009 IMAF Japan Tour. All details to be announced soon!

Special Feature

The Contribution of Judo to Education

by Jigoro Kano

The object of this lecture is to explain to you in a general way what Judo is. In our feudal times, there were many military exercises such as fencing, archery, the use of spears, etc. Among them there was one called Jujutsu which was a composite exercise, consisting principally of the ways of fighting without weapons; using, however, occasionally daggers, swords and other weapons.

The kinds of attack were chiefly throwing, hitting, choking, holding the opponent down and bending or twisting the opponent's arms or legs in such a way as to cause pain or fracture. The use of swords and daggers was also taught. We had also multitudinous ways of defending ourselves against such attacks. Such exercise, in its primitive form, existed even in our mythological age. But systematic instruction, as an art, dates only from about three hundred fifty years ago.

In my younger days I studied this art with three eminent masters of the time. The great benefit I derived from the study of it led me to make up my mind to go on with the subject more seriously, and in 1882 I started a school of my own and called it Kodokan. Kodokan literally means a school for studying the way, the meaning of the way being the concept of life itself. I named the subject I teach Judo instead of Jujutsu. In the first place I will explain to you the meaning of these words. Ju means gentle or to give way, Jutsu, an art or practice, and Do, way or principle, so that Jujutsu means an art or practice of gentleness or of giving way in order to ultimately gain the victory; while Judo means the way or principle of the same.

Can this principle be applied to other fields of human activity? Yes, the same principle can be applied to the improvement of the human body, making it strong, healthy and useful, and so constitutes physical education. It can also be applied to the improvement of intellectual and moral power, and in this way constitutes mental and moral education. It can at the same time be applied to the improvement of diet, clothing, housing, social intercourse, and methods of business, thus constituting the study and training in living. I gave this all-pervading principle the name of "Judo". So Judo, in its fuller sense, is a study and method in training of mind and body as in the regulation of life and affairs.

Judo, therefore, in one of its phases, can be studied and practiced with attack and defense for its main object. Before I started Kodokan, this attack and defense phase of Judo only was studied and practiced in Japan under the name of Jiu-jitsu, sometimes called "Tai-Jitsu", meaning the art of managing the body or "Yawara", the "gentle management." But I came to think that the study of this all-pervading principle is more important than the mere practice of Jiu-jitsu, because the real understanding of the principle enables one to apply it to all phases of life.

This speech by Jigoro Kano was given at the University of Southern California (USC) in Los Angeles on the occasion of 11th Olympiad, 1932.
